

ZEITSCHRIFT FÜR KRISTALLOGRAPHIE - CRYSTALLINE MATERIALS

Ed. by Rainer Pöttgen

Objective

Zeitschrift für Kristallographie – Crystalline Materials was founded in 1877 by Paul von Groth and is today one of the world's oldest scientific journals. It offers a place for researchers to present results of their theoretical experimental crystallographic studies. The journal presents significant results on structures and on properties of organic/inorganic substances with crystalline character, periodically ordered, modulated or quasicrystalline on static and dynamic phenomena applying the various methods of diffraction, spectroscopy and microscopy.

Topics

- ▶ General Aspects
- ▶ Inorganic Crystal Structures
- ▶ Organic and Metalorganic (including Biological)
- ▶ Crystal Structures
- ▶ Technological Aspects
- ▶ Computer Programs
- ▶ Instrumentation
- ▶ Material Properties

Article formats

Letters, Reviews, Original Papers, Discussions, Book Reviews

> Information on submission process

Your benefits:

- ▶ State-of-the art research results
- ▶ Theoretical and experimental approach
- ▶ High quality peer-review
